HELLO, i'm THEA!

I'm Geronimo Stilton's sister.
As I'm sure you know from my brother's bestselling novels, I'm a special correspondent for The Rodent's Gazette, Mouse Island's most famous newspaper. Unlike my 'fraidy mouse brother, I absolutely adore traveling, having adventures, and meeting rodents from all around the world!

The adventure I want to tell you about begins at Mouseford Academy, the school I went to when I was a young mouseling. I had such a great experience there as a student that I came back to teach a journalism class.

When I returned as a grown mouse, I met five really special students: Colette, Nicky, Pamela, Paulina, and Violet. You could hardly imagine five more different mouselings, but they became great friends right away. And they liked me so much that they decided to name their group after me: the Thea Sisters! I was so touched by that, I decided to write about their adventures. So turn the page to read a fabumouse adventure about the

A SPECIAL INVITATION

That Saturday morning, I woke up feeling more CHEERFUL than a chipmunk. I was about to scurry off on a trip that was really SPECIAL, even for a world traveler like me!

After a quick breakfast, I checked to make sure I had everything I needed in my suitcase. Then I rushed out on one last errand.

Oh, pardon me, I almost forgot to INTRODUCE myself! My name is THEA STILTON, and I am a special correspondent for The Rodent's Gazette, Mouse Island's biggest newspaper.

Now, where was I? Oh yes, hurrying over to the Squeaky-Clean Dry Cleaning Shop.

The shop owner, Toni Tidytail, greeted me with a SMILE. "Hi, Thea! Are you here for your gown? I'll get it for you right away."

Toni disappeared behind a rack of MULTICOLORED garments. A few moments later, she reappeared with my dark red evening gown in her paws. It was perfectly pressed.

Toni carefully wrapped the gown in tissue paper. "What a marvemouse dress! Are you wearing it for a special occasion?"

I nodded. "I've been invited to a theatrical performance on Whale Island."

"Really? What is it — an opera? Or a ballet? I just love the ballet!" cried Toni,

I'm going to a theatrical performance!

Really? A baller?

doing a quick TWO-STEP.

I smiled. "Actually, no. It's a GREEK TRAGEDY!"

Toni's snout dropped. "Really? How unusual!"

"Yes, the play is very old. It was written around two thousand five hundred years ago!"

Toni was intrigued. "OOH . . . tell me more."

"My friends the THEA SISTERS invited me," I explained. "They recently visited Greece."

A few years ago, I'd returned to Mouseford Academy, my old school, to teach a journalism class. Colette, Nicky, PAMELA, PAULINA, and Violet — the THEA SISTERS — were my star students.

"I should've known those DARLING mouselets were involved!" Toni exclaimed. "I've heard you squeak of them so many times. Were they in Greece on vacation?"

"Yes, a very unusual vacation," I replied. "Full of surprises . . . and MYSTERY!"

Toni's eyes widened. "MYSTERY? What sort of mystery?"

I checked my watch. I still had a few hours before my flight took off for Whale Island. I had just enough time to tell my old friend about the Thea Sisters' latest adventure . . .

WELCOME TO GREECE!

Colette, Nicky, Violet, Pam,
and Paulina were scampering
along a sunlit street filled with shops and restaurants.

“How about a little lunch?” said Pam, dragging her paws. “We deserve it after this hike!”

“Come on, it’s just a FEW MORE STEPS. Our hotel is close — I swear it on a stack of cheese slices!” said Nicky, checking the map of ATHENS she held in her paws.

“Are you sure?” sighed Colette, who was pulling an enormous pink suitcase behind her. “You said the same thing half an hour ago!”

"Maybe we're lost," Violet said.

Nicky looked up. "Nope! There it is!"

The mouselets headed for a small white building with bright pink bougainvillea growing over the front door.

A rodent with a kind snout was setting a small table out front. "Hello! You're the mouselets from Whale Island, right?"

Before the Thea Sisters could answer, the rodent continued squeaking. "I'm Kostantina, the owner of this hotel. Welcome to ATHENS! You're sure to love it here!"

"Thanks," said Paulina, smiling.

Colette started dragging her huge suitcase toward the entrance, hobbling and panting as she went. Kostantina rushed to help her, chattering all the while.

"You're staying for just two nights, right?"

* Bougainvillea is ■ tropical shrub or vine with brightly colored flowers.

Welcome to Athens!

You must head straight to the Acropolis, if you're not too tired! The view of the city from there is unforgettable. I just know you're going to love it."

The mouselets exchanged a LOOK. Paulina whispered, "She reminds me of Professor de Mousus when he gives his annual welcome speech, the one that —"

"— never ends!" Pam finished, giggling.

"You'll definitely like the room I've prepared for you — it's the biggest one!" the HOTEL owner continued. "Now, kick back your paws for a bit, and when you're ready, a traditional Greek meal will be waiting for you on the terrace."

Pam perked up at those words. An hour later, she was the first to SCURRY back downstairs, with her friends trailing behind.

The sunset painted the sky warm SHADES

* An acropolis is the highest part of an ancient Greek city, where the most important religious and government buildings were located. The Athens Acropolis is a UNESCO World Heritage site.

GREECE

OFFICIAL NAME: Hellenic Republic

CAPITAL: Athens

POPULATION: 10,893,000

SURFACE AREA: 50,949 square miles

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE: Greek

Greece is located in southern Europe, on the Balkan Peninsula. About one-fifth of its territory is made up of islands: There are more than two thousand in all, and most of them are uninhabited!

Greece is rich in history and culture. It's famous for important philosophers such as Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle, and for great masters of literature, theater, mathematics, and medicine. The Olympic Games were born in ancient Greece.

of pink. As they relaxed on the terrace, the mouselets grinned at one another. Their vacation had finally begun!

"I'm so excited we're finally here in Greece!" Violet exclaimed. "We'll get to visit fascinating archaeological sites, museums, ancient cities . . ."

"Don't forget, Vi, you promised me some relaxation time on the beach!" Colette said, wagging a paw at her friend.

"Plus, the FOOD here is supposed to be amazing," Pam put in.

As if on cue, Kostantina scampered over with a STEAMING serving dish, and the Thea Sisters turned their attention to their first delicious Greek dinner.

DISCOVERING ATHENS

The next morning, the Thea Sisters were up bright and early. They couldn't wait to start exploring the city.

The mouselets were leaving the hotel when Colette realized something. "Uh-oh, I forgot my sunscreen! We'll be in the sun all day, so we should be covered up."

"Good call, Colette," Paulina said. "Go get it, we'll wait for you here."

As they waited, Nicky pulled out a map to show her friends their route for the day. They were all huddled together when they heard shouting: "I don't want anyone to suspect . . ."

There was a rodent HIDDEN in the corner of the terrace, arguing on his cell phone. As soon as he noticed the mouselets, he ended his call and turned away.

"That was weird," Paulina said.

Just then, Colette rejoined them, with an ENORMOUSE bottle in her paw. "Mouselets, I've got my sunscreen! Ready to go?" Then she noticed the distracted expressions on her friends' snouts. "What's up?"

"Nothing, just that rodent . . ." But when Paulina turned to point at him, he had disappeared.

"All right, let's move those tails! Ancient Athens is waiting," Nicky said. "In a few hours, it'll be HOTTER than fondue in a pot."

They began their tour at the Acropolis, the highest part of the city. Many ancient temples, theaters, and monuments had been built there, and some were still standing.

The mouselets clambered along the path up the hill. Nicky led the little group, while Violet trailed behind, yawning. "We got up way too early . . ."

But then she spotted the first set of MARBLE COLUMNS. "Wow, I think that's the most fabumouse thing I've ever seen!"

Paulina opened her GUIDEBOOK. "Those are the Propylaea, the columns that mark the entrance to the Acropolis. They were built more than two thousand four hundred years ago."

"And look! That's the Parthenon, right?" Colette asked, indicating a majestic TEMPLE that towered over the Acropolis.

Absolutely fabumouse!

“Uh-huh. It’s dedicated to the goddess Athena, and it’s the most important building in the Acropolis,” Paulina replied.

“Don’t you feel MINUSCULE in front of something this monumental?” Paulina asked.

The others nodded. They were squeakless before such splendor.

THE PARTHENON

The Parthenon is named after Athena Parthenos, the Greek goddess of knowledge and wisdom. It is considered one of the finest examples of classical architecture still existing. In ancient times, the Parthenon was home to a statue of Athena that was thirty feet tall. Now, only smaller copies of it exist.

A little later, the mouselets reached the theater of Dionysus. As they sat down on the stone steps, Violet said, "Did you know the ancient Greeks were famous for writing plays? Isn't it thrilling to think some of them were performed right here where we're sitting?"

"Were they LOVE STORIES?" Colette asked.

"No, mostly tragedies," Violet replied.
"Stories of battles, betrayals, LONG journeys . . ."

"Oh," said Colette, wrinkling her snout.
"Not a single story with a happy ending?"

Violet laughed, but she didn't want to disappoint her FRIEND. "Let me think about it . . . maybe I'll remember one!"

AN ANCIENT THEATER

The mouselets' two days in ATHENS passed in a flash. Soon the THEA SISTERS were scurrying out to the terrace to say good-bye to Kostantina.

"It's been a pleasure to have you here. It's a shame that you're going so soon . . . but on the other paw, the rest of Greece is certainly worth visiting!"

"We've enjoyed it here," said Pam. "But we have to hurry to catch our bus!"

The mouselets ran to the station, where they just barely caught the bus to Corinth.

Paulina and Nicky immediately stuck their snouts in their guidebooks, Colette applied a layer of SUNSCREEN, and Pam munched on a cookie Kostantina had packed for her.

As for Violet, she fell into a deep sleep. She woke only when Colette shouted, "Come on, sleepysnout! We have to get off!"

"Huh? Wha?" Violet mumbled. "I was DREAMING. I have to tell you about it . . ."

"You can fill me in later. Let's go!" Colette urged her.

Rubbing her EYES, Violet scrambled off the bus and joined her friends on a large bridge. Below them, a bright blue canal ran between two tall stone walls.

"Smokin' Swiss cheese, where are we?" she cried.

"The CORINTH CANAL, which divides Athens from the Peloponnese, the southernmost part of Greece," Nicky explained.

"It's so gorgeous! I just adore Greece." Colette sighed.

"Wait until you see the ancient THEATER of Epidaurus!" Nicky replied.

"Squeaking of theater . . ." Violet said as they clambered onto the next BUS. "Guess what I was dreaming about? A Greek play that you'd absolutely love, Colette!"

"Really?" her friend replied.

"Yeah! It's a love story, and it has a happy ending. It's called HELEN, and it was written by Euripides," Violet continued.

"Eupirides? Who's that?" Pam asked.

"Euripides!" Violet corrected her. "One of the greatest writers in the ancient world. In Helen, he tells the myth of a married couple separated by the TROJAN WAR. They find each other again after lots of adventures."

THE CORINTH CANAL

This man-made canal was built between 1882 and 1893. It connects the Gulf of Corinth with the Saronic Gulf. It is 3.9 miles long and about 82 feet across at its widest point.

It has a happy ending!

Violet told her friends the story as their bus drove to Epidaurus. The mouselets had already begun touring the famouse theater there by the time she finished her tale.

"How romantie!" Colette cried. "Right, Pam? Pam . . . ? Where is she?"

The mouselets were at the CENTER of the stage, in the lowest part of the theater.

"I don't see her . . ." Paulina murmured, squinting.

"Paaaam!" Colette shouted.

Her squeak echoed throughout the theater. In the back row, a rodent was waving at her.

"There she is! But how did she hear me?" Colette asked.

"This theater is famous for its amazing acoustics," Violet explained. "You can HEAR the actors from everywhere!"

Pam rejoined her friends. "It's true. I heard every squeak, Coco!"

"WOW! Um, what are you eating, Pam?"

"Oh, nothing . . . just an olive sandwich."

HELEN, BY EURIPIDES

The Trojan War has ended, and Menelaus, the king of Sparta, is on his way home with his wife, Helen. But his ship wrecks on the coast of Egypt, and Menelaus discovers that the real Helen is living in the court of the Egyptian king — the one traveling with him is a phantom!

Menelaus is reunited with the real Helen, and they are blissfully happy to be together again. They want to return home, but the Egyptian king wants to marry Helen himself. Helen and Menelaus find a way to escape, and together they set sail for Greece.

I'm here!

"Pam, your belly must be absolutely bottomless!" Colette laughed.

Pam nodded. "The stories about my belly and its bottomlessness are no myth. But now I'm super thirsty, too."

"Nicky went to get some water," Paulina said. "THERE she is!"

Nicky RAN toward them. "Mouselets, look at this flyer. A drama festival is starting here in three days."

"Oh my GOODMOUSE! The first play is Helen!" said Colette.

"Let's stay here for a few days," Violet said. "We can't miss the PLAY!"

Pam! Paaaam!

A DRAMATIC SCENE

Colette, Nicky, Pam, Paulina, and Violet were looking for a café when they heard a sad squeak. “What a disaster! There’s no one as unlucky as me!”

The squeaker was a mouselet pacing back and forth outside the theater like a rodent trapped inside a mousehole. She was squeezing a set of rolled-up papers in one paw.

“Poor thing! I wonder what happened to her,” Paulina said.

“My love has abandoned me!” the mouselet exclaimed.

“A broken heart!” Colette said. “Let’s see if we can cheer her up.”

Colette gently placed a paw on the mouselet’s shoulder. “I couldn’t HELP overhearing what you said. You mustn't GIVE UP!"

The mouselet looked surprised. "What do you mean?"

"Um, well . . ." Colette faltered. "I, uh, heard you saying you felt abandoned . . ."

The rodent giggled. "Oh, that's so nice of you! But don't worry, I was just PRACTICING my part."

"Your part?" Paulina echoed. "Are you an actress?"

“A great actress!” a squeak exclaimed.

A tall, smiling ratlet was approaching the mouselets. “My name is Ioannis, and this is my friend Khloe. We’re part of the theater company that’s performing here.”

“Oh, excuse me! I’m sorry for intruding . . .” Colette murmured, turning red.

Ioannis laughed. “Don’t worry. Khloe never misses a chance to practice her part, and when she does, she FORGETS about everything around her!”

Violet turned to Khloe. “Now I UNDERSTAND — you were rehearsing HELEN! That’s the part when she’s in despair because her husband doesn't recognize her, and she feels all has been lost."

Khloe nodded. "That's right," she said. "But now we have to get back to rehearsal, or we're going to be LATE."

"Yes, we have to get back," Ioannis agreed. "But please come see us on opening night!"

"We'd love to," Colette replied, "but first we need to find a place to stay."

"I can help you," Ioannis said. "My aunt runs an inn nearby. Khloe, the actors, and I are all staying there. Aunt Thalia still has free rooms, and I'm sure she'd be happy to host you."

"That would be great," Violet said. "But we don't want to put you to any trouble . . ."

"It's no trouble!" the ratlet replied. He glanced at Khloe. "We're always happy to make friends with theater lovers like you, right?"

Khloe nodded, but she didn't seem that interested.

Ioannis pawed the mouselets a card for the Hotel Rhododendron.

"Here, it's not far.

And my aunt is ■ great cook!"

Just then, a sharp squeak interrupted them. "There you are!

I need you back onstage pronto!"

"That grouchy rodent is our director, Nestor," Ioannis whispered to the Thea Sisters.

"Sorry, Nestor. We're coming!" Khloe replied. She scurried away, DRAGGING Ioannis along with her.

"Hmm," Paulina said. "I think I've SEEN Nestor somewhere before, but I don't remember where . . ."

"Sisters, let's go check out Ioannis's aunt's hotel," Pam said. "I know you're going to tease me for saying this, but I'm hungrier than a rat in a cheese shop."

"You're not alone, Pam," Violet replied. "I'm starving, too! After all, it's DINNERTIME."

The mouselets scampered toward the EPIDAUROS town center.

Paulina has seen Nestor before ... but where?

IT MUST BE FUN TO BE AN ACTOR

Ioannis was right: Aunt Thalia was a magnificent cook, and her hotel was cheerful and comfortable.

The mouselets chatted until it was late. The next MORNING, when they stumbled sleepily into the breakfast room, they found a surprise on their table: a bouquet of fresh flowers.

“My nephew left those for you,” Thalia explained. “And he asked me to give you a message. Now, what was it? Hmm. My memory is lousy these days . . .”

“Maybe he wanted to tell

My memory is lousy!

us something about the play," Paulina guessed.

"The PLAY? Oh yes, of course! He said you could go help with the rehearsal, if you'd like."

"What a GREAT IDEA!" said Violet. "Let's go."

A half hour later, the mouselets arrived at the THEATER, where the company was busy rehearsing. Nestor stood center stage, giving instructions to an actor. Around them were a dozen rodents practicing their lines and adjusting their COSTUMES.

"Who are you?" a ratlet in ancient Greek clothing asked. "Tourists aren't allowed in here."

"Don't worry, they're friends," said Ioannis, appearing from behind the set. Khloe was right behind him. “I invited them.”

“Oh, well, in that case, allow me to introduce myself: I am Teucer, messenger, friend of Menelaus, son of Telamon!” the ratlet declared with a bow.

“Um, has the cheese slipped off your cracker?” Pam exclaimed, confused.

Ioannis grinned. “You must excuse Nikos — he’s a little too into his character!”

Everyone burst out LAUGHING.

“How about you, Ioannis? Who are you playing?” Violet asked, curious.

“Menelaus, the king of Sparta . . . and Khloe is my wife, Helen!” he said, taking her paw.

Khloe blushed. Before she could reply, a rodent holding a dress in her paws approached. “Khloe, we still need to choose your costume. Come with me!”

“Of course!” the mouselet replied, hurrying away.

“It must fun to be an ACTOR,” Colette commented. “I’ve always dreamed of acting, but I’ve never had the opportunity.”

Khloe, come with me!

“Oh, I’m sure you’ll get a chance sometime,” said Ioannis. “Hey, why don’t you start by giving me a paw while I practice my lines? I think Khloe will be busy in wardrobe for a while.”

“What? Oh . . . I couldn’t . . .”

“Come on, Colette, don’t be shy!” Nicky urged her. “Just pretend you’re in ancient Greece!”

REHEARSAL TIME

Colette gathered up her courage. She cleared her throat and began. “Look at me. Who knows me better than you do?”

The Thea Sisters sat down to watch. “This is the scene when Menelaus and Helen meet for the first time in a long time, and he doesn’t believe that she’s really his wife,” Violet explained in a LOW squeak.

“You look like her, it’s true . . .” Ioannis recited.

“Do you or do you not believe what you see?” replied Colette, who was becoming more NATURAL and CONFIDENT.

The pair continued their dialogue and then went on to the next scene, in which Menelaus finally realizes that the real HELEN is before him.

"Oh, long-awaited day, when I might take you in my arms again!" cried Ioannis.

"He's really good!" Paulina said softly.

"Yes, and Colette is a total star, too!" Nicky whispered.

"My dear Menelaus, finally, after all this time, I am happy again!" Colette said.

Nicky, Pam, Paulina, and Violet were impressed. They clapped enthusiastically at the scene's end.

Meanwhile, Khloe had returned from her costume fittings, and she was struck DUMB at the sight of Ioannis and Colette rehearsing together.

"Wh-what? Is Ioannis thinking of REPLACING me?!" she sputtered.

"No way! No one could REPLACE YOU!" said Nikos.

Khloe smiled at her friend. "I wish I were as sure as you are! Ioannis has been acting strange lately . . ."

"What do you mean?" Nikos asked.

Khloe sighed. "He's always distracted, and it seems like he's never paying attention. I've tried talking to him about it, but he says everything's OKAY . . ."

"Well, if he's neglecting you, he's crazier than a cat chasing his own tail," Nikos declared.

Just then, Ioannis and Colette finished their scene, and the THEA SISTERS surrounded Colette, showering her with compliments.

Ioannis saw Khloe and headed toward her, but then his phone rang. “Excuse me . . .” he said, looking at the NUMBER on his phone’s screen. He stepped away to take the call.

“You see? Just like I was saying,” Khloe told Nikos, shaking her snout. “Lately he’s been getting lots of MYSTERIOUS phone calls.”

“Yeah, that is weird,” said Nikos. “But don’t worry about it. You should concentrate on the play! I could help you practice your part.” He pawed her a script.

“Thanks, Nikos. You’re a good friend,” Khloe said.

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY

After a busy day at the theater, the THEA SISTERS returned to Aunt Thalia's inn.

Thalia had been busy, too. She and her husband, Kosmas, had MOVED all the tables on the terrace against the walls, creating a big open space in the middle. And Thalia had prepared a TRADITIONAL DINNER for the mouselets and the theater company. After dinner, there would be a dance performance.

The Thea Sisters took a quick ratnap, and then joined the PARTY. The only one missing was Colette, who tried on every outfit in her SUITCASE before she came down.

"Colette, thank goodmouse you MADE IT! A few more minutes and Pam would have eaten everything,” Nicky joked.

Pam rolled her eyes. “Hey, I’m just paying the proper respect to Aunt Thalia’s home-grown goodies!”

The ACTORS from the theater company were all there, including Khloe and Nikos, who were chatting in a corner. Only Ioannis was missing.

“Where’s your REHEARSAL partner, Colette?” Paulina asked.

“You mean me?” came a squeak from BEHIND them.

“Ioannis! What’s that? A costume from the play?” asked Pam in surprise.

The ratlet laughed. He was wearing white pants, a billowy shirt with a red belt, a colorful vest, and shoes with pom-poms on them.

"It's my outfit for the sirtaki," he replied.

"For what?"

"The sirtaki, a GREEK dance. You'll see!"

A moment later, lively music filled the room, at first slow and then becoming faster and faster.

The hotel's GUESTS formed a line, with Ioannis in the middle, and started to dance together in small, graceful jumps.

The mouselets started to clap their paws in time. They watched for a few moments, till they'd learned the steps, and then joined the dance.

"Follow me!" Ioannis urged them.

The terrace was filled with the thunder of pawsteps as the

Costume for the sirtaki

dancers whirled and twirled.

Khloe joined the dance, too, as Ioannis's partner.

The evening passed in a FLASH. Just before midnight, the Thea Sisters decided to turn in for the night. Their paws were aching from all that dancing!

Tired but happy, the mouselets stopped to admire the STARRY sky reflected in the ocean. Then they headed up to their ROOMS and went straight to sleep.

A PERFECT DAY TO RELAX!

The next morning, the mouselets woke up with the melody of the sirtaki still ringing in their ears.

“What’s the plan for TODAY, Sisters?” Pam asked at breakfast.

“We could go to Mycenae, to visit the archaeological site,” Violet began.

“Or we could rent bicycles and visit the countryside,” Nicky suggested. “I saw a bicycle path on the map. It’s long, but it goes through a really beautiful area, and —”

“Now, wait just one minute, mouselings!” Colette exclaimed. “Are we on vacation or what?”

“Yes, but —” Violet replied.

"No buts! Vacation means at least a few days of perfect relaxation on the beach. Otherwise, why did I fill my suitcase with bathing suits and sundresses?!"

Violet laughed. "You have a point, Coco! Okay, the beach it is."

Colette pulled a large PINK BAG out from under the table. It was filled with bottles of sunscreen, a sun hat, SUNGLASSES, towels, and even an inflatable raft.

"Something tells me that Colette has our day all planned out," said Nicky, WINKING.

"You bet! Thalia and Kosmas RECOMMENDED a spot not far from here," Colette explained. "What do you say, are we ready to go?"

Less than a half hour later, the mouselets were STRETCHED OUT on a marvemouse beach.

Nicky started blowing up an inflatable raft. "Who's coming with me for a DIP?"

Colette opened one eye. "I just started working on my tan! I'll join you in a little while . . ."

Pam sprang toward Nicky, grabbed the RAFT, and jumped into the water, shouting, "Come on, Sisters! Last one in is a rotten cheese puff!"

The others leaped after their friend. Even Colette jumped to her paws. "Wait, I don't want to be the LAST one in!"

The mouselets stayed in the crystal blue water for a long time, splashing, PLAYING, and swimming.

Wait for me!

Try and catch me!

We're coming!

After a few hours, they decided they'd had enough sun, so they started walking back to the inn.

"I wonder if Ioannis has finished learning his lines," Violet said as they scampered along.

The mouselets exchanged GLANCES. Finally, Colette said what everyone was thinking. "Why don't we stop by and see how rehearsals are going?"

At the theater, the THEA SISTERS discovered that yesterday's cheerful atmosphere had disappeared like cheddar in a cheese grater. The actors were pacing nervously back and forth, and Nestor held his snout in his paws. His whiskers were quivering with worry.

"What happened?" Paulina asked Ioannis, who came over to greet them.

"It's a total CAT-ASTROPHE," the ratlet sighed. "The mouselet playing the guardian of the king's palace fell down . . ."

"Oh, no! Is she HURT?"

"Nothing serious — Melina just sprained her ankle. But she won't be able to perform on opening night. We might have to postpone the PLAY!"

We might have to postpone the play!

A DREAM COME TRUE

“There’s no UNDERSTUDY?” Violet asked Ioannis.

“Unfortunately, no, we don’t have any available actresses, and —”

Before Ioannis could finish, Nestor POINTED his paw at Colette. “You! You!”

“Me?” said Colette, turning to see if Nestor was pointing at someone behind her. “Um, what about me?”

“You are the answer! I heard you reading some lines yesterday. You are expressive. With a little practice, you could stand in for Melina.”

“But I . . .” Colette faltered, BLUSHING.
“I can’t suddenly become an actress!”

Me?!

Yes, you!

"I'll help you," Ioannis said.

"Perfect. Then it's decided," Nestor concluded. "Come on, break's over, back to work! I want you in your places in three minutes!" he shouted to the other actors.

"What a bossy rodent," Violet whispered.

"Maybe so, but he's right. Colette is the only one who can HELP US!" Ioannis replied.

"Come on, let's go work on your PART."

Khloe stepped forward. "But, Ioannis, you have to rehearse with me . . ."

"You're already WONDERFUL, Khloe!" the ratlet reassured her. "It's better if I help Colette."

Khloe scurried away without another word. Violet noticed that her eyes were shining with tears. Ioannis was so busy helping Colette, he didn't notice a thing.

"Poor Khloe," Violet said.

"But Ioannis is right. Khloe is already a great ACTRESS. And she already knows her part, while Colette has to learn everything," Pam replied.

"That's true, but still . . ." said Violet, "I think he hurt Khloe's FEELINGS."

Little by little, Colette began to learn Melina's part. She was playing the old guardian Menelaus meets at the door of the palace where the real HELEN lives.

"Who goes there? Get out of here don't stop here . . ." she RECITED.

"Hey, stop and breathe! Otherwise the audience won't understand a word," said

Ioannis, giving her a kind SMILE.

"You're right," Colette said. "I'm just a little nervous . . ."

"Don't WORRY. Just put yourself in the character's shoes and forget everything else."

"Is that what you do?" Colette asked.

"Yes, when I'm acting I forget the real world," said Ioannis. "Let's try it together! Now you are an ancient rodent, and I am Menelaus . . ."

Colette took a deep breath. "Who goes there? Get out of here, don't stop here!"

Who goes there?

"You could say it more kindly!" Ioannis replied, ANNOYED.

Colette blushed. "I'm sorry, I was just trying to lose myself in the part . . ."

Ioannis burst out laughing. "No, no, that's my line! You're doing great!"

Encouraged, Colette continued reciting her lines as her friends WATCHED from the wings.

"Colette is going to be GREAT," Paulina commented.

"I think so, too. Right now, I think she'll have the biggest problem with her wardrobe!"

Violet giggled, pointing to a huge white wig.

Pam grinned. "Our stylish Coco is absolutely going to love that!"

A SUDDEN DISAPPEARANCE

The next two days passed in a flash. Colette was practicing her part AROUND THE CLOCK.

"At least tomorrow is opening night,"

Who goes there?

Who goes there?

Who goes there?

Paulina said as they sat down at the breakfast table. "If I have to hear that scene one more time, I'm going to lose my cheese!"

"Come on, mouselets, move those paws! I'm going be late for rehearsal," exclaimed Colette. She was clutching her script. "Today Ioannis is going to show me a few tricks for dealing with STAGE FRIGHT!"

But there was no trace of Ioannis at the theater, and none of the actors knew where he was.

"That's weird," said Violet, frowning.

"Where could he be?" Colette wondered.

She saw Khloe and scampered over. "Hi, Khloe, have you SEEN Ioannis today?"

"No," Khloe replied. "I assumed he was helping you with your part, as usual."

Just then, Charissa, the costume assistant, joined them. "Mouselets, have you seen Ioannis? I've been LOOKING for him for hours! We were supposed to have a fitting at eight a.m."

"We're trying to find him, too," Violet explained. "We don't know where he is."

"Something smells stinkier than putrid feta," Colette said. "Ioannis is always ON TIME!"

I don't believe this!

What's wrong?

"Maybe Nestor can help," Nicky suggested.
"There he is. Let's ask him."

The show's director looked even more ANXIOUS than usual. He scurried toward the mouselets sighing and shaking his snout. He held a SHEET of paper tight in his paws.

"I don't believe this! Ioannis is playing tricks on me!" he shouted at Khloe.

Khloe looked more surprised than a kitten in a dog kennel. Nestor stuck the paper in her snout. "Check this out!"

Khloe began to read aloud.

Dear Nestor,

I'm so sorry, but I have to go out of town for a few days because of some urgent family business. I'm afraid I won't be reachable for a while, but please don't worry about me. I hope to return in time for the show. Thank you for understanding.

See you soon,
Ioannis

The mouselet let the PAPER slip from her paws. “I can’t believe he left without telling me . . .” she gasped.

At that MOMENT, Nikos joined the group. “What’s going on?” he asked.

“Ioannis had to Leave because of family business,” Violet explained.

“Cheese sticks! His business is to stay here and perform,” Nestor cried. “Tomorrow is opening night! I need a missing actor like mold on a fresh slice of mozzarella. If Ioannis thinks he can scamper off and then show up at the last MINUTE, he’s got another thing coming!”

“This is terrible for the show!” cried Nikos, shaking his snout.

Sob!

“Khloe, do you know what happened?”

But the mouselet had already run off with tears in her EYES.

Colette looked thoughtful. “Something VERY SERIOUS must have happened,” she murmured. “I can’t believe Ioannis would just leave without squeaking to anyone.”

“Crusty carburetors, I don’t like this story one bit!” Pam exclaimed.

“You’ll see, he’ll come back,” Paulina said, trying to lift her friends’ spirits. “Tomorrow is an IMPORTANT day for him.”

“I hope you’re right . . .” Colette whispered.

DO YOU TRUST US?

Nikos tried to catch up with Khloe. “Hey, WAIT FOR ME!” he called.

The mouselet turned, but kept her snout down. “What is it?”

“I wanted to tell you — don’t worry about Ioannis. I’M SURE HE’S FINE . . .”

“Of course he’s fine! He left without telling me anything,” Khloe cried. “He didn’t stop to think about me for a second.”

“Don’t get your tail in a twist, Khloe,” Nikos said kindly. “Forget about him and concentrate on the play.”

“I don’t feel like rehearsing now. I’m going to take a walk,” Khloe replied.

“Do you want me to come with you?” Nikos asked.

The mouselet shook her snout. “Thanks, but I’d like to be alone for a bit.”

Meanwhile, the other actors were rehearsing their scenes. Colette had to get back to work, too, on Nestor’s orders.

“Sprained ankles, disappearing actors . . . what’s next?!” muttered the director, PACING back and forth like a cat outside a mousehole.

“Sisters, I know what we need to perk us up — a nice snack!” Pam suggested.

“Good idea,” Violet said. “I’m more ravenous than a rodent on a MouseFast diet. I saw a snack cart outside. I’ll go pick up a few things.”

The moment Violet set paw outside the theater, she heard a muffled sob. She followed the sound to a bench where Khloe sat alone. Violet CLEARED her throat.

The actress lifted her tear-stained snout and saw her. “Oh . . . I’d like to be alone, please.”

Violet was very wise for such a young mouselet. She knew that sometimes a rodent’s snout says one thing, but her heart wants something else. At that moment, Khloe needed a friend. So Violet sat down, offered her a tissue, and waited for Khloe to squeak.

Khloe sniffled for another minute. “I don’t UNDERSTAND,” she said at last. “Until just a few weeks ago, Ioannis and I were best friends. But lately he’s started to act funny, like he’s keeping a SECRET from me. And now he's gone!"

"Do you know what his family trouble is?" Violet asked.

Khloe shook her snout. "I'm not sure. But it might just be an excuse to get away..."

"I'm sure there's an explanation," Violet said kindly. "I don't know

He left without a word...

There must be an explanation!

Ioannis well, but he seems like an HONEST ratlet.”

“He used to be,” Khloe replied sadly. “But lately he hasn’t been telling the whole truth. I have so many QUESTIONS . . .”

“Why don’t you let me help? We’ll find answers to your questions together,” Violet said.

“Together?”

“Of course! You, me, and the other Thea Sisters,” said Violet, smiling. “Do you trust us?”

For a moment, it was so quiet, you could hear ■ cheese slice drop. Violet could see Khloe was torn. But eventually, the other mouselet decided to trust her.

“All right,” Khloe said, taking Violet’s outstretched paw. “Let’s go find your friends.”

NO LUCK

Pam WAVED to Violet. "Hey! Where's our snack? I'm starving!"

"Pam, I'm afraid your stomach will have to wait," her friend replied.

"Sorry! It's my fault. I distracted her," Khloe explained with a shy smile.

Just then, Colette scurried over. She was in full costume. "Mouselets, hide me from Nestor! I need a minute to catch my breath!"

"That mouse is BESSIER than a beaver building a dam," Khloe joked.

"Oh, Khloe, there you are! We've been looking for you," Colette said.

"I needed to CLEAR my head. But after squeaking with Violet, I decided to ask Hide me!

you all for help,” Khloe said.

“Sizzling spark plugs, of course we’ll help you!” Pam said. “Um . . . help with what?”

“Help her figure out WHERE Ioannis is,” Violet explained.

Colette nodded. “Great idea. We’ve got to stick together. Friends together, mice forever!”

“You!” a squeak boomed. “There you are! Get onstage and keep on practicing! Khloe — you, too!”

The two mouselets had no choice but to follow Nestor’s ORDERS. As they scurried away, Khloe WHISPERED, “Go see Aunt Thalia. Maybe she knows something.”

The mouselets decided to follow Khloe’s advice. They scampered back toward the inn as fast as their paws could take them.

When they arrived, Aunt Thalia was busy cleaning the entryway.

“Um, excuse me . . .” Paulina said.

“Oh, hi there! You’re back already?” asked Aunt Thalia. “Would you like me to make you a SNACK?”

Pam was about to say yes, but Nicky didn’t give her a chance. “No, thank you. We’re actually here to ask you about Ioannis.”

“Isn’t he a darling ratlet? Ever since he was a mouseling he’s loved acting! He’s won many awards! See this?” Aunt Thalia said, pointing at a TROPHY. “He won it when he was only seven!”

“He’s very talented,” Paulina agreed. “Um, we were wondering if Ioannis said anything unusual to you LAST NIGHT.”

Aunt Thalia reflected for a moment. “Oh, yes, he did! He wanted me to prepare *moussaka tonight for your dinner,” she REPLIED. “That’s my specialty, you know.”

“So he didn’t say anything about any trouble?” asked Pam.

“TROUBLE? No, nothing like that,” Aunt Thalia replied. “Why, should I be worried?”

“Oh, no, of course not!” said Pam quickly. “We just want to, um, surprise him on his opening night.”

Nicky thanked Aunt Thalia, and the THEA SISTERS moved out to the courtyard.

“Mouselets, we’ve run out of clues. I don’t know what to do next,” said Violet.

Paulina nodded. “All we can do is wait for Ioannis to show up in the fur!”

* Moussaka is a traditional Greek dish: an eggplant and meat pie.

SOMETHING'S NOT RIGHT

That night, none of the Thea Sisters slept well. They were all thinking of their new friend and his mysterious DISAPPEARANCE. They tossed and turned like kittens with a new ball of yarn.

The next morning, the mouselets rolled out of bed early, hoping that Ioannis had returned or that there would be news from him. Unfortunately, there was nothing, so they decided to dedicate the day to their search. They would begin by exploring the area around EPIDAUROS. Maybe someone had seen Ioannis before he left.

Colette, Nicky, Pamela, Paulina, and Violet ate a quick breakfast and scurried out of the inn.

When they'd gone a few steps, they heard Aunt Thalia calling after them. "Mouselets, just a minute! I found a NOTE Ioannis left for you yesterday. I put it in my apron pocket and then FORGOT all about it! I am so sorry."

*Just a minute!
I forgot this!*

"No worries," Pam said. She took the note and read it aloud to her friends.

CLUE!

Dear mouselets,

Nestor asked me to take care of an urgent errand for him. I'll be back as soon as possible. Don't wait for me, just go on to rehearsal without me.

See you soon,

Ioannis

"That's why he left!" Paulina cried.

"But in the note he left with Nestor, Ioannis talked about a family emergency," Nicky said.

"Mumbling muffers, I don't understand this at all," Pam said.

"There's only one rodent who can clear this up," Violet said. "Nestor!"

Suddenly, Paulina's eyes lit up. "Now I remember where I've seen Nestor before! He was the mysterious rodent on the phone at our hotel in Athens!"

Ioannis left two different notes, with two different reasons for his absence. Why? Could one note be a fake?

"I knew it! That mouse has always seemed kind of shady," Pam said.

"Shady, and a little HARSH." Colette put in. Over the last few days, Nestor hadn't missed a chance to criticize her performance.

"Well, what are we waiting for?" Nicky said. "There's no point standing around here with our tails in a twist. Let's go ask him to explain himself!"

ON NESTOR'S TAIL

As soon as they reached the THEATER, the mouselets started looking for Nestor.

"You're here awfully early," said Khloe in surprise.

Violet nodded. "Yes, we found a clue back at the inn."

"It's a note Ioannis left for us," Paulina explained. "Check it out."

Khloe twisted her whiskers as she scanned the paper. "Wait . . . what? This doesn't match the message Ioannis left for Nestor!"

"Exactly," Pam said. "We came to find Nestor to ask him about it."

"Nestor just left," Khloe said.

"We've got to catch up with him!" Nicky exclaimed.

"Okay, let's go!" Khloe replied.

Violet shook her snout. "You and Colette should stay here. You need to rehearse. Plus, we need you here in case Ioannis returns or gets in touch."

"All right," Khloe responded reluctantly. "Keep me posted, okay?"

Nicky, Violet, Paulina, and Pam scurried off in the direction Khloe had indicated. After a few minutes, they ended up at the bus station.

“LOOK over there!” said Nicky. Nestor was climbing onto a bus. The doors closed behind him, and the bus zoomed away.

“We missed him by a WHISKER!” Violet panted. “Now what?”

“Relax, Sisters!” exclaimed Pam, smiling. “I got a look at its destination: MYCENAE!”*

“There’s another bus to Mycenae leaving soon,” Paulina said.

The mouselets ran to the ticket window. There was only one rodent ahead of them.

“We have five minutes before the next bus leaves,” Violet said, checking her watch.

But the rodent ahead of them was very demanding. “I need to go to Athens,” he told the ticket mouse.

“One TICKET, right away,” she replied.

“The bus has air conditioning, right?”

“Yes.”

“But not too cold, okay? And PLEASE get me ■ good seat! Not in the front, but not in the back . . .”

“So, in the middle?” suggested Violet impatiently.

* Mycenae is a famous Greek archaeological site. To see where it’s located, check the map on page 11.

“Okay, the middle!” the rodent agreed.

The mouselets were SEETHING with impatience. Finally, it was their turn.

“Four tickets for Mycenae, please!” Nicky rattled off. Then she and the other mouselets dashed for the bus.

“PUFF ... PANT ...

I feel like an out-of-shape gerbil on a brand-new wheel.

This vacation is turning out to be way less relaxing than I expected!” gasped Pam.

SHEEP CROSSING!

As the bus zipped along, the THEA SISTERS tried to figure out how to keep tabs on Nestor.

"I wonder how big Mycenae is," Nicky said.

Paulina pulled out her MousePhone to check, when . . .

BOOM! EEEEEEEEEECHHHHHH!

Look! That's the bus
Nestor boarded!

The driver slammed on the brakes. They were stuck right behind another BUS!

Nicky LEANED out the window to see what was happening. "The bus in front of us stopped to let a flock of SHEEP go by."

"That's Nestor's bus! It must have been stuck here for a while," Colette said.

"Sisters, this is our LUCKY DAY," Pam declared. "We've already caught up with him!"

A moment later, the two buses started up again. They arrived in MYCENAE at the same time.

The THEA SISTERS began following Nestor through the streets of Mycenae. He immediately started walking toward the archaeological site.

"Maybe Nestor wants to learn more about

MYCENAE

Mycenae is an ancient city located not far from Epidaurus. It was home to the legendary king Agamemnon, who commanded the Greek armies during the Trojan War. The German archaeologist Heinrich Schliemann, who is considered the modern discoverer of ancient Greece, began excavating the city in the 1860s.

In Mycenae, Schliemann discovered the famous Mask of Agamemnon, a golden funeral mask thought to have been made for King Agamemnon. After many years of study, scholars have agreed that the mask actually predates the famous king.

ancient Mycenaean civilization,” Nicky guessed, checking her GUIDEBOOK. “There was an ancient city here. Archaeologists didn’t discover it until the 1860s.”

“Mouselets, look!” said Paulina, pointing to a gateway made of STONE.

“It’s the LION GATE!” Nicky explained. “It was built around 1300 CE, and —”

“Tell us later, Nic. Nestor just stopped!” Pam hissed.

“He’s waiting for someone,” Paulina whispered. “Let’s blend in with those TOURISTS so we can keep an eye on him.”

A few minutes later, a rodent wearing big, round sunglasses approached Nestor.

The two mice shook paws and started talking. The only one close enough to hear them was Violet.

“Sorry we had to meet here,” the rodent

Can you find Violet, Nicky, Paulina, and Pam?

Answer: Pam and Violet are on the left side of the page, and Nicky and Paulina are on the right.

told Nestor. “I was hoping for a quiet place to TALK.”

Nestor looked ANNOYED. “But, Michael, this place is packed with rodents! Someone could hear us and discover our secret . . .”

Violet took a step closer. What could the secret be?

“Well, there’s no need to keep it a secret any longer. You can make the announcement!”

“So it’s true? Our tour of the BEST theaters in Europe is on?!” Nestor asked. “I can’t wait to tell the actors the GOOD NEWS!”

Violet couldn’t help herself. “A TOUR?!” she gasped.

The two rodents turned toward her in shock.

“Hey, what are you doing here?!” Nestor cried.

The tour is official!

FALSE TRAILS AND HIDDEN CLUES

Nicky, Pam, and Paulina rushed over to Violet.

“What’s going on, Vi?” Nicky asked.

“Oh, nothing,” Violet said. “Our suspicions were all wrong—”

“Suspicions?” Nestor interrupted. “What in the name of string cheese are you talking about?”

Paulina took a deep breath. “Something about Ioannis’s disappearance didn’t seem right to us,” she explained. “You showed us a note that mentioned family business, but Aunt Thalia passed on a different message from Ioannis.” She pawed Nestor the note that Ioannis had left at the inn.

Nestor SCANNED it. “Errand? I didn’t ask him to take care of an errand!” he sputtered.

“We thought you had something to do with Ioannis’s disappearance,” Violet said. “We heard you scheming with someone on the phone in Athens. Then today, when we saw

We thought that...

... I was to blame?

you leave in such a hurry, we thought . . .”

“ . . . that I was hiding the TRUTH about Ioannis?” Nestor said, laughing. “I’m afraid your theory has more holes than a slice of Swiss, mouselets. I came to Mycenae for a business matter, the same reason I went to Athens a few days ago! This is Michael Rattis, a producer who’s just arranged a European tour for our production of Helen.”

“Cheese nibblets! Why would Ioannis leave a fake message with Aunt Thalia?” Pam sighed.

Michael took a step forward. “Mouselets, you seem so sincere about finding your friend. Nestor and I would love to give you a paw. I love a good mystery! Tell us what you know, and maybe we can help you figure it out.”

Violet glanced over at her friends. They nodded. So she told Nestor and Michael everything.

Michael remained silent for a few moments, scratching his snout. “We have two notes saying different things. One must be from Ioannis, because he gave it to his aunt personally, but it talks about an errand that doesn’t exist. And Nestor’s note mentions a family emergency . . .”

HERE’S THE SITUATION:

- Nestor found a message from Ioannis saying he needed to go away because of urgent family business.
- Ioannis left a note with his aunt saying that he was away on an errand for Nestor.
- One of the two notes must be a fake, but which one?
- Nestor said he didn’t give Ioannis an errand to run. Is he lying? Or was Ioannis tricked?

We can deduce that...

“But why would Ioannis have written two different reasons?” wondered Violet.

“Good question. We can deduce that Nestor’s letter is probably fake. Maybe someone asked your friend to do an errand and PRETENDED it was for Nestor!”

“Wavering whiskers!” Pam exclaimed. “But if Ioannis has been tricked, he could be in DANGER!”

“And he certainly won’t get back in time for opening night,” Nestor groaned. “I need to find an understudy so we don’t have to cancel the show!”

“And we need to think about how to find Ioannis,” Colette said. “But where do we even START?”

There was ■ moment of silence. Then Paulina squeaked up. “We can’t give up, mouselets! The key to solving a MYSTERY is paying attention to the details. We might already have the clues we need to find Ioannis, we just need to LOOK at them in the right away!”

A CLUE REVIEW!

The THEA SISTERS and Nestor began their trip back to Epidaurus.

The director had one thing on his mind: how to replace his lead ACTOR. “We’re just a few hours from opening night! Who could possibly play Menelaus?” he groaned, clenching his PAWS. “If I find out who did this . . .”

If I find out who did this . . .

As for the mouselets, they were focused on how to find their friend, and whether he might be in trouble.

“We need to tell Khloe everything,” Nicky said. “She may know something important, even if she doesn’t realize it.”

"Yes, the clues we have aren't getting us anywhere," Violet added. She glanced at Ioannis's note in her paws. "Details . . . just need to LOOK at them the right way . . ." she murmured. "Of course! That's it! Anyone have a PENCIL?"

Paulina passed her one. Violet began to shade one corner of the paper with the pencil. "There's something hidden here!"

Dear mouselets,

Nestor asked me to take care of an urgent errand for him. I'll be back as soon as possible. Don't wait for me, just go on to rehearsal without me.

See you soon,

Ioannis

“You’re right! Mouselets, look!” Paulina said.

The words “BIG BLUE” had appeared on the paper.

“Before he wrote this note, Ioannis wrote ‘Big Blue’ on the sheet of paper above this one. Then he tore off that sheet and took it with him, but the impression remains,” Violet explained.

“This is the most important CLUE we’ve found so far,” Paulina said.

“But what does ‘BIG BLUE’ mean?” asked Pam.

The mouselets and Nestor exchanged a confused LOOK: They had no idea!

A USELESS CLUE?

As soon as she saw the Thea Sisters enter the theater, Khloe scurried offstage to meet them. “Hi! What did you find out?”

Nestor APPEARED behind the mouselets. “They found out that I have nothing to do with your FRIEND’S disappearance!”

“But . . . wh-what . . .” Khloe stuttered as Nestor stalked off, muttering to himself.

Violet placed a paw on Khloe’s shoulder. “It’s true, Nestor had nothing to do with it. It looks like someone PROBABLY tricked Ioannis into leaving Epidaurus.”

“So where is he now?” Khloe asked.

“We don’t know, but we did find a new clue. Before he disappeared, Ioannis wrote down the words ‘BIG BLUE’. Do you know what that means?”

“Big Blue is the name of his favorite rock band. He wanted to buy tickets for their next concert,” Khloe replied.

“Hmm . . . I DON'T KNOW how that could be related,” Paulina murmured.

Colette and Nikos scampered over and joined their group.

“Mouselets, what SAD snouts! What happened? No news about Ioannis?” Nikos asked.

“The only CLUE we have is the phrase ‘Big Blue,’” Khloe replied.

Nikos was startled. “What?”

“Yeah, that’s his favorite rock band. Nothing useful for our investigation,” Paulina explained.

A discouraged Silence fell over the young rodents.

What?

"Khloe, didn't you say that Ioannis has been getting strange phone calls lately?" Nikos asked.

"Yes," the mouselet said, looking down in the snout. "He was definitely hiding something from me . . ."

"If that's the case, the reason he left probably has something to do with his secret," Nikos concluded. "All we can do is wait for him to RETURN."

"No, we can't," Pam protested. "He could be in danger!"

"What makes you think that? He just left yesterday. I'm sure he'll turn up soon," the ratlet replied.

At Nikos's words, the COLOR returned to Khloe's snout. "Maybe you're right."

"But, Khloe, that doesn't seem likely," Paulina said. "Ioannis wouldn't —"

He's hiding something from me!

“Nikos! I’m looking for you! Come here!” Nestor thundered from the wings.

“Sorry, Nestor, I was just taking a little break,” the ratlet said. “I’ll get back to practicing my part.”

“Forget that part! We’ll find a substitute. From now on, you’ll play the role of Menelaus!”

The mouselets’ jaws FELL OPEN like a pack of hungry cats at feeding time.

“What?!” Nikos asked.

“We’re running out of time, and I can’t WAIT for Ioannis to return,” Nestor explained. “You’re the only one who can replace him, Nikos.”

“But I . . . I don’t know if . . .” the ratlet spluttered.

“Nestor’s right,” Khloe said, nodding. “You’re the only one who knows the role.”

“Come on, move those paws! We’ve got to rehearse your new scenes,” Nestor ordered.

Khloe arranged to meet up with the mouselets later. Then she scurried after Nikos.

“Do you think that Nikos could be right? Did Ioannis go away for some secret reason?” asked Nicky uncertainly.

Paulina shook her snout confidently. “I think there’s something else going on. And we won’t give up until we find out what.”

A DELICIOUS DISCOVERY

“Curdled cream cheese, I just don’t get it.” Pam sighed. She and the other Thea Sisters were sitting around a big table at an ice cream shop.

They had left Colette at the theater for dress rehearsal while they followed up on a few more clues. But everything was a dead end. The mouselets were stuck like flies in fondue. So they’d decided to stop for a snack.

“This ratlet is harder to find than a cheese slice in a haystack. We’ve looked everywhere, but no one’s SEEN him,” Paulina said.

“I’ll bet a little brain food will spark some new ideas,” Pam said. She grabbed the menu. “Hey, there’s an ice-cream sundae called BIG BLUE!”

“Maybe Ioannis wanted to come here for ice cream,” Nicky said.

“Holey cheese, and here we were thinking it might be an important clue.” Violet moaned.

“Well, I’m going to try it,” Pam said. “It might not lead us to Ioannis, but at least it’ll fill my hungry belly!”

When the waiter brought their orders, everyone stared at Pam’s sundae.

“Pam, your ice cream is strawberry and vanilla — red and WHITE! So why is it called ‘Big Blue’?” asked Paulina.

“BIG BLUE’ is the nickname of an abandoned lighthouse down the coast,” their waiter explained. “This sundae named after it is one of our SPECIALTIES.”

It looks like a lighthouse!

Maybe Big Blue was the CLUE the mouselets were looking for after all!

“Do you know how to find this lighthouse?” Violet asked the waiter.

“Sorry, I’m not from Epidaurus. I’m just working here for the summer.”

“No worries,” Violet said, paying for their ice cream.

Paulina, Nicky, and Violet got to their paws. Only Pam remained seated. “Hey, SISTERS, we’re not going to abandon my Big Blue, are we?”

“Come on, Pam, we can’t lose this CHANCE to shine ■ light on the mystery of Ioannis’s disappearance!” replied Nicky.

Pam managed to taste the very top of her lighthouse sundae. Then she followed the others toward the town CENTER.

Big Blue is a lighthouse. But what does it have to do with Ioannis’s disappearance?

THE FISHERMICE

The THEA SISTERS were back on Ioannis's trail, this time with a concrete clue to investigate.

Unfortunately, all the stores in town were closed for the afternoon, and the HEAT

There's no one around to help us!

kept everyone inside their houses. The streets were DESERTED!

"This town is emptier than a candy store the day after Halloween! And we're so close to solving the mystery . . ." Violet groaned.

"We hope we're close," Paulina muttered. "It's only a few hours until opening night! If this turns out to be another RED HERRING, we're in trouble."

"Snouts up, mouselets," Nicky exclaimed. "I think we're on the right track. We're going to find Big Blue, I can feel it in my whiskers! Are you with me?"

Violet, Pam, and Paulina NODDED.

"Let's try to think this through. What does a lighthouse do?" Violet asked.

"It guides sailors," Pam replied. "But this is an old lighthouse . . ."

"Then we must ask some old sailors!" Nicky suggested. "Hey, squeaking of herrings, how about those fishermice over there?" She scurried toward them without waiting for an answer.

Violet squinted in the direction Nicky had headed. "Wait, isn't that Aunt Thalia's husband? Kosmas?"

"It sure is!" Paulina said. "Let's ask him!"

Violet, Pam, and Paulina hurried after Nicky. She was already squeaking with Kosmas and several other fishermice repairing their nets on the dock.

By the time they reached her, Nicky was smiling with satisfaction. "They know where Big Blue is!"

"Of course we know! That old lighthouse has guided sailors across the big blue sea for years. There are lots of MYTHS about that place, you know," a sailor with a sunbeaten snout said.

"What kind of myths?" Pam asked.

"Oh, that it's HAUNTED by ghosts. You know, stuff like that," another fishermouse added, chuckling.

"If you want to visit Big Blue, you'll need to scurry over," the first rodent continued.

“It takes a few hours to get there.”

The mouselets shared a discouraged look. They didn’t have much time!

“We could RENT bikes,” Nicky suggested. “We’d get there FASTER than on paw!”

“I’ll give you a lift, mouselets,” Kosmas said, looking up from his nets for the first time. “Any friends of my nephew’s are friends of mine!”

The mouselets didn’t want to tell Kosmas they were actually looking for his nephew. But they were glad to have his help!

THE MYSTERIOUS BIG BLUE

The Thea Sisters squeezed into Kosmas's van, which started up with a deep rumble. Soon they were zipping down a road that hugged the coast.

"Look at that view!" Nicky cried, pointing to the bright blue sea.

"It's breathtaking! Right, Vi?" Pam asked her friend. "Violet?"

Violet's snout was greener than mold on aged cheddar.

"UH-OH," Paulina said. "It's this twisty road. I'm afraid Violet's going to toss her cheese . . ."

After a few more sharp turns, Kosmas announced, "We're getting close. The beach you're looking for is right over there."

"The lighthouse is there?" Nicky asked.

"Yes, but don't get too close," Kosmas warned them. "I could tell you myths about that place that would make your whiskers shake!"

Pam gulped. "Are we sure there are no GHOSTS in there?" she whispered to Paulina.

"Pam, ghosts aren't real. Didn't you hear what Kosmas said? They're just myths. Plus, we'll be together, and Khloe is counting on us!"

Pam took heart at her friend's words. When Kosmas parked the van, she was the first to set out along the steep path toward Big Blue.

At the end of the path was a small, windy beach. The Thea Sisters spotted the old lighthouse at the end of a rocky jetty.

"Let's take a look around. Maybe we'll find some clues," Paulina suggested.

The others nodded and began to search the BEACH.

But after ten minutes, the mouselets gave up. "There's nothing here but shells and seaweed," Nicky said sadly.

“And rocks!” Pam agreed, hurling a pebble into the sea.

“Guess it’s time to check out the most IMPORTANT place,” said Violet. She pointed to the lighthouse, which cast a long SHADOW over the sand.

The Thea Sisters cautiously picked their way toward it.

“The door is locked,” Paulina said. “What do we do now?”

Then they heard a STRANGE sound.
Thump! Thump!

The mouselets jumped. It was coming from inside the lighthouse!

THE KEY IS IN THE DETAILS

Meanwhile, back in EPIDAUROS, the theater company was in the middle of their last rehearsal before opening night. But Khloe couldn't concentrate.

"I have so many things to tell you, I don't know where to start . . ." recited Nikos as Menelaus.

Khloe started to say Helen's lines, but then she stopped and sighed. "I'm sorry, I can't focus . . . I have too many other things on my mind."

"You need to concentrate! There's only an hour until the show begins, and we're about to have a complete cat-astrophe on our paws!" Nestor cried.

Khloe lowered her snout. Her eyes shone with tears.

“Come on, YOU’LL SEE — everything will work out . . .” Colette reassured her, placing a paw on her shoulder.

“I’m just so worried about Ioannis,” Khloe said.

“Nestor’s right,” Nikos told her. “We must concentrate on the play. It’s our BIG

This is my moment!

It will work out . . .

CHANCE! I've been waiting for this moment for a long time, and now that it's here, we can't let anything ruin it."

Colette shot him a look of surprise and confusion. How could Nikos be thinking of his own SUCCESS at a time like this?

She was about to respond when Charissa, the costume assistant, scurried over with an envelope in her paw. "There you are! You're just who I need."

"For what?" Khloe asked.

"To sign this get-well CARD for Melina," Charissa replied. "We got her flowers. Poor thing, she's so upset that she's missing opening night."

"What a nice idea," replied Khloe, signing the card.

"How is it going? Is her ankle healing?" asked Colette as Nikos Signed, too.

Charissa nodded. “Melina will have to rest for a few more days, but then she’ll be okay.”

“Tell her not to worry — we have a great understudy here in the meantime!” Khloe said, flashing a warm smile at Colette.

The mouselet blushed, EMBARRASSED, and took the card to sign it. Before she gave it back, she glanced at the other signatures, and something caught her ATTENTION. One of signatures seemed familiar. But why?

Wishing you a speedy recovery!

Your friends,

Nestor Charissa

Colette

Khloe

Nikos

What caught Colette's eye?

“The key is in the details . . . you just need to look at them the right way . . .” she murmured, remembering what her friends had told her. Suddenly, she realized where she’d seen that pawwriting before.

“Colette? Can I have the card back?” Charissa asked, pointing to the card in her paws.

“Huh? Oh, yes, of course, sorry!”

“And, Nikos, come with me, please,” said Charissa. “The fur stylist is waiting to fix your fur like a real king of Sparta!”

“Okay, I’m coming,” Nikos said. He followed her with a sigh.

Colette watched him leave. “Khloe,

Thanks for signing!

do you have Ioannis's note? The one that Nestor found the other morning?" she asked.

"Yes, why?"

"Will you show it to me?"

As soon as Colette had the letter in her paws, she had no doubt: The pawwriting matched one of the signatures she'd seen on Melina's card. It was NIKOS'S!

LAST-MINUTE INVESTIGATION!

There was only a half hour until the curtain went up for Helen's opening night.

Colette looked around nervously: Where could Nikos be? She absolutely had to find him and ask him to explain.

The stage was empty, and the first audience members were starting to file in. Colette felt her tail twist with tension as she watched. Soon all these snouts would be turned in her direction . . .

"Keep calm and scurry on," she murmured to herself. "This is no time for stage fright. I need to find Nikos!"

Colette headed to the FUR-STYLING and costume area, but Nikos wasn't there.

"Excuse me, have you SEEN Nikos?" she asked the actor closest to her.

"Who commands this strength?" he cried.

"Huh?" said Colette. Before he could reply, an actress explained, "Don't bother him, he's

Have you seen Nikos?
Who commands
this strength?

REHEARSING.

He had to learn the part of the messenger Teucer in a hurry, since that was Nikos's part!"

"Squeaking of Nikos," Colette said, "do you know where he is?"

"I think I saw him by the props truck," the mouselet replied.

“Thanks!” exclaimed Colette, hurrying in that direction.

But at the truck there were only two stagehands, who were busy unloading the spotlights.

“Where could he have gone?” Colette muttered. There were only twenty minutes until showtime.

Just then, Colette heard whispering. She followed the sound into a dense cluster of TREES outside the theater. Two figures were standing there.

“I don’t understand what you’re saying,” a FEMALE squeak said.

“Khloe, this isn’t easy for me . . . This is something I’ve Where could he have gone?

wanted to say for a long time, but I couldn't find the COURAGE. Now that Ioannis has disappeared without an explanation—”

“Nikos!” Colette interrupted him, stepping of the SHADOWS. “You’re the one who owes us an explanation!”

“Colette, what are you doing here? Did something happen?” asked Khloe in surprise.

Colette nodded. “I’ve DISCOVERED something interesting. The note Nestor found wasn’t written by Ioannis, was it, Nikos?”

The ratlet turned paler than mozzarella. “What are you saying?”

Colette took a deep breath. “I’m saying that you were the one who wrote it. I recognized your pawwriting!”

Khloe’s tail stiffened like a breadstick. “Nikos, is that true?”

“Of course not! I have nothing to do with Ioannis’s DISAPPEARANCE. And all this gossip is making us late. The show is about to start!”

Nikos was about to SCURRY AWAY

when he was suddenly caught in the glare of two bright lights.

“STOP!” cried Pam, scrambling out of Kosmas’s van, which had pulled up a few yards from them.

The other THEA SISTERS hurried out after her, with a ratlet right on their tails.

“Ioannis!” Khloe shouted, rushing to hug him. “It’s you! You’re back!”

Ioannis threw his paws around her.

“I was so worried! Where have you been?!” Khloe asked.

“I wasn’t far, but I couldn’t get back to you,” Ioannis replied.

ALL IS EXPLAINED

Paulina quickly told their friends how the mouselets had discovered that Big Blue was the nickname of an abandoned lighthouse.

“Uncle Kosmas gave us a LIFT out there to look for Ioannis. It took us a while to get the lighthouse door open, but then we found him inside!” Nicky said.

“What were you doing all the way out there?” Khloe asked in DISBELIEF.

“Maybe you should ask him,” Ioannis replied, shooting Nikos a dirty look.

The ratlet lowered his snout. “It’s all my fault,” he admitted. “I lured Ioannis into a trap to keep him away from the theater . . . and from you, Khloe.”

“But — but why . . .” the mouselet stammered.

"You've always seen me as just a friend, but I feel something more for you. You don't know how often I've wanted to tell you. But you only had EYES for Ioannis, your Menelaus," Nikos said bitterly.

"And so you tricked me, and trapped me!" Ioannis cried.

Ask him to explain!

It's all my fault!

"I'm sorry. I wanted to keep you far away on opening night . . . and so I arranged for you to disappear," Nikos said.

"Then you did write that note to Nestor, just as I suspected!" Colette exclaimed.

"Yes, I made up a story about family business, so no one would worry too much about where Ioannis had gone. But I told Ioannis that Nestor needed him to go out to BIG BLUE on an errand."

"And then you locked him in!" Violet concluded.

Nikos nodded. "I didn't want to hurt anyone. I left Ioannis everything he needed: FOOD, water, a blanket for the night . . ."

"I'm just fine, but if it weren't for the Thea Sisters, I would have missed the opening night of our play,” Ioannis said.

“And you would have stayed locked away for who knows how long!” cried Khloe in HORROR. “Nikos, what were you thinking?!”

“I was planning to go back and let him out tomorrow . . . Khloe, I wanted to be your leading mouse for just one night!”

Nikos buried his snout in his paws. “I’ve made a terrible mistake. I didn’t mean to make such a mess . . .”

“You should have told Khloe how you felt,” Paulina said. “Tricks and LIES never get you what you want.”

“I understand that now,” Nikos replied sadly, looking at Khloe and Ioannis, who were holding paws HAPPILY.

“What are you all doing out here?!” came

Nestor's squeak from the backstage door.
"It's showtime! The audience is PACKED in like SARDINES in a can! Khloe, Nikos, Ioann — Ioannis!? When . . . ?
How . . . ?"

"It's a story longer than a cat's tail,"
Pam said.

"The important thing is that I'm here. And I'm ready to go onstage!"
Ioannis said.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON!

There was no time for EXPLANATIONS. Nestor agreed that the roles would return to the way they'd originally been cast: Ioannis would play the part of King Menelaus, and Nikos would be the messenger, Teucer.

"Break a paw, Colette! We'll be ROOTING for you," Pam told Colette. Then she, Nicky, Paulina, and Violet settled into seats in the front row.

Left alone, Colette tried to concentrate on her lines, but she was sure she'd forget everything.

"I can't do it . . . I'm not an actress! This is going to be a CAT-ASTROPHE!" she cried.

Ioannis put a paw around her. “You’ll be great! Just relax and take deep breaths.”

“I can’t relax. I’m wound up tighter than a mousetrap spring!”

Ioannis smiled. “That’s normal. You just need to turn your nervousness into positive energy. Think about something that makes you feel happy . . .”

Colette closed her eyes and tried to follow Ioannis's ADVICE. She thought back to a recent evening at Mouseford Academy. The Thea Sisters had an algebra exam the next day, and they'd gotten together for a last-minute study session. Violet had fixed everyone a cup of TEA, Pam had passed around a plate of cookies, Nicky had told funny stories, and Paulina had chosen just the right music.

As she remembered that relaxing evening with her friends, Colette suddenly felt calm. She wasn't alone: She had four special friends who believed in her and were ready to cheer her on.

And so, when it was her turn, Colette scurried onstage excited and full of energy. All she needed was a quick look at her friends in the front row to know that everything was going to be okay.

AFTER THE APPLAUSE

The PLAY was a smashing success. Thanks to Ioannis's advice and her friends' support, Colette performed like an expert actress. She didn't make a single mistake.

The best scene in the show was the reunion of Menelaus and Helen. Ioannis and

Khloe INFUSED their characters with their own joy at seeing each other again,

and it resulted in a scene so moving, it blew

the audience away!

At the end of the play, the actors came back onstage so the AUDIENCE could congratulate them and take pictures. The Thea Sisters couldn't wait to take a few snaps of Colette in her costume!

When the crowd had thinned out, Nestor approached Ioannis. "So, is someone going to tell me what happened?!"

Before the ratlet could open his snout, Nikos began squeaking. "It was all my fault, Nestor. I was jealous of Ioannis, and I wanted to play the part of Menelaus with Khloe. So I, er, arranged for his DISAPPEARANCE."

Nikos turned to Ioannis. "I'm so sorry for what I did."

Ioannis lowered his snout. But before he could squeak, Nestor stepped in.

"What you've done is very serious," the director said sternly. "And not just because you put our play at risk. You mousenapped someone! The actors in this company must trust one another, and I'm afraid I can't trust you after this. So I can't allow you to participate in our company's tour."

"I understand," Nikos replied.

"Wait a minute. What did you say about a tour?!" Khloe cried.

All the actors GATHERED around Nestor, eager to hear their director's BIG announcement.

"That's right, rodents! I'm pleased to say that the world-famous producer Michael Rattis is sponsoring us on an international tour. Our show isn't just opening in Greece, it will be opening all over EUROPE!"

All the actors cheered.

"Wow!"

"That's marvemouse!"

"We're going to perform in the best theaters in the world!"

Nestor SMILED.

"And there's more. This evening I'm hosting a cast party. We'll celebrate by the sea. You're all invited!"

"HOORAY!"

The actors quickly changed out of their costumes and headed for the beach.

"You're coming, too, right?" said Khloe, clasping Violet's paws.

Violet smiled at her new friend. "Of course we'll come!"

By the time the mouselets REACHED the

We're going on tour!

seaside, the party was going stronger than Whale Island's annual CheeseFest. There was music, food, and COLORFUL decorations to celebrate the success of Helen and its cast and crew. It was absolutely fabumouse.

Soon the entire cast and crew was DANCING in the moonlight. The Thea Sisters joined Ioannis and Khloe on the dance floor. They were happy that opening night had been such a success. And they were prouder than a pack of porcupines that Colette had done so well in her acting debut!

THE SURPRISES AREN'T OVER!

At the end of the party, the Thea Sisters and their new friends SCAMPERED back toward Aunt Thalia's inn.

"What a wonderful night!" Paulina commented, looking up at the starry sky.

"Yes, yes, it's beautiful. But there's something I still can't make snouts or tails of," Pam said.

"What's that?" Violet asked.

"Oh, it's no big deal, Vi," Pam said hastily. "It's nothing, really . . ."

"Come on, after everything we've been through, squeak what's on your mind," Ioannis urged her.

"All right, Ioannis, if you say so," said Pam.

"Here's what I don't get . . . what is the secret you've been keeping from Khloe?"

Ioannis blushed REDDER than a tomato. "What are you talking about?"

"I told the mouselets how you've been acting strange lately," Khloe said. "You're always making mysterious phone calls. I think you've been hiding something!"

Ioannis burst out laughing. "You mouselets are totally on to me! Okay, you've got me. I have no choice but to reveal my secret!"

The mouselets watched Ioannis and waited.

"Khloe, the thing I've been trying to hide from you is . . . a vacation!" Ioannis said.

"What?!" Khloe cried in disbelief.

"Yep, that's it! We've been so tired and stressed lately, with our busy rehearsal schedule. So I wanted to surprise you with a special trip just for us,” the ratlet explained. “All those phone calls were to find the PERFECT place, and I’ve finally done it! Just before I disappeared, I bought our boat tickets. Now we’ll have a chance to relax before the tour begins!”

Khloe JUMPED UP and threw her paws around Ioannis's neck. "This is the best surprise ever!"

"What a great idea, Ioannis!" Colette exclaimed.

"Yeah, that is a great IDEA!" Pam put in. "So great that a similar vacation just might be perfect for five FRIENDS who need to relax after solving a major mystery!"

The mouselets burst out laughing. After the adventure they'd had, it was definitely time to enjoy the Greek SEASIDE!

Here, catch!

What a great shot!

How relaxing!

A VERY SPECIAL PERFORMANCE

A few months had passed since the Thea Sisters got back from their exciting trip to Greece. I couldn't wait to see them again.

The mouselets returned to Mouseford Academy with more than just WONDERFUL memories. They had made a plan: Helen's tour would stop on Whale Island! Professor de Mousus was very excited about the chance to introduce his students to the world of Greek drama.

So that NIGHT, I put on my elegant red dress and scampered into the theater at Mouseford Academy. The headmaster and I couldn't wait to SEE Nestor's company at work!

How wonderful!

As soon as the lights went out, a hush of suspense fell over the auditorium. When the curtain opened, Khloe's squeak filled the entire room. She made a marvemouse Helen!

WATCHING

their friends onstage, the THEA SISTERS felt as if they were back in Greece again. Colette never took her eyes off Khloe and Ioannis. She even whispered the lines that she had PRACTICED so many times.

At the end of the play, there was thunderous applause from the audience.

Then Khloe and Ioannis took the stage to say a special thank-you. "We dedicate this performance to five special mouselets who showed us the meaning of the words friendship, trust, and loyalty. Thank you, Thea Sisters!"
